2005 • Hardback • 932 pages
$68.00 US ($80.00 Cdn)

Announcing a new publication gathering together, in one volume, the collected works of Anatol G. Feldman, the originator of the Equilibrium-Point Hypothesis of Motor Control.

This volume brings together, in chronological order, all of the publications written by Anatol G. Feldman in the English language (excluding book chapters) between 1964 and 2005.

Edited by Mindy F. Levin, the book is divided into 5 sections spanning five decades. Each section is introduced by leading researchers in the field of motor control including Ramesh Balasubramaniam, Mikhail Birkenblit, Mark Latash, Francis Lestienne, Mindy Levin, Gregory Orlovsky, David Ostry, John Rothwell, and Michael Turvey.

Forty Years of the Equilibrium-Point Hypothesis is an essential reference book for students and professionals in motor control. It is intended for all those interested in the development of the field of motor control from the 20th Century to the present day.
